

Note on Pricing:

It is very difficult to value the knowledge, also it is the public nature of the knowledge in the sense that same knowledge once stated can benefit thousands of people or even millions and billions of people. Some truths might have already the millions or billions of dollars impacts. The whole country or many countries in the world might have been affected with that knowledge. So, individual pricing is difficult.

But it cannot be 'free' also because there is the definite cost in getting knowledge in terms of time spent and other costs, both the physical, mental, and psychological stress, time cost in thinking, conceptualizing, and finalizing the truth, and so many risks are also there in revealing the important and effective knowledge and truth.

Considering all the costs of getting truth and its benefits, I have kept some price of the essays/articles I wrote on different topics but for an individual that price is not very high but my articles' real value, in terms of the overall effects is very high and their value should be seen, perceived or thought in that sense. Those already might have Billions of dollars impact and I want those thoughts, ideas and knowledge to be known by everyone, consciously now.

Besides, I have some very interesting questions and answers session which is optional to pay.

If they benefitted from my knowledge or their knowledge increased and they found it useful or think that it might be useful in future, they can pay, but minimum 5 dollars.

Based on those or otherwise, they can also decide to purchase my paid products.
